Correction: EPA-Ethics story

By MICHAEL BIESECKER Published March 06, 2018 MarketsAssociated Press

In a story March 5 about an Environmental Protection Administration employee who was allowed to consult for private clients, The Associated Press reported erroneously that the agency did not release any documents in response to a Freedom of Information request. The agency said Tuesday that some documents were posted to a FOIA website March 2. However, the AP did not receive notification by email or U.S. mail, which is the usual procedure.

A corrected version of the story is below:
